THE coroner's inquest held last week on the body of Lachapelle developed nothing new. The body had not been disturbed after having been first discovered although the cabin had been entered by S. M. Starkey on Sept. 1st. It was found that a string had been tied from one ankle to one trigger of the gun so that by straightening the leg the gun would be discharged. Dr. P. Aylen examined the body and found that the skull, not the face, had been blown off. The body had decayed to skin, bone and sinew. Death had been instantaneous. The coroner's jury, consisting of Jas. Haney, foreman, C. Ouellette, J. M. Watson, Alphonse Lamoureux, L. Oliver Lamoureux and H. Cullen, rendered a verdict of suicide. By order of the coroner, Mr. W. Anderson, the body was interred near the cabin. A quantity of provisions were found in the cabin but were damaged so that they were useless. They included three sacks of flour, 50 pounds of bacon, half a caddy of tobacco, tea, sugar and other articles. The fur of which the bed was composed was spoiled, as also a lynx skin and fisher skin hanging on the wall. The latter skin and the gun of the deceased were sold to S. M. Starkey for $6 dollars. No papers were found by which the relatives of the dead man could be known. No indication was found that he had any property beyond what the cabin contained.

THE survey parties of Messrs. Dumais and Gosselin returned from Beaver lake on Saturday, the surveyors themselves going south to Calgary direct. Eight townships were surveyed on the east side and south end of the lake. Dumais surveyed townships 52 and 53 in ranges 16 and 17, and Gosselin townships 50 in ranges 17 and 18 and 51 in ranges 16 and 17. This completes the survey all around the lake except fractional township 51, range 18 on its west side and township 50 range 19 which corners on the lake. The lake is 25 miles long and from two to seven broad; it is very shallow for at least half a mile from the shore and the bottom is sandy. The water is good for drinking and fish are plentiful. There is good farming land on both east and west sides of the lake, but the west has the advantage of plenty of wood which the east side has not. Major Butler's abandoned house is on the west half of section 2, township 52, range 17 and his plowing and fencing on the east half of the same section. The situation is very desirable near a lake some two miles in diameter.

THE Mail informs eastern people that the Indians of the west have declared for the present government should the franchise be accorded them. The Indian department in the territories, however, does not appear to take that view of the case, considering how strong a stand it has taken against allowing the Indians to acquire votes by leaving the treaty.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, SEPT. 11, 1886.

WINTER RANGES.

THE movement of range cattle from the western states to the North-West Territories this year and in prospect for next season has brought up the question of the probability or possibility of overstocking the Canadian ranges. Some hold that it is questionable policy to allow a large influx of cattle from the States when it is possible that our limited winter range is already pretty fully stocked. If it is a fact that this influx is likely to crowd the grazing area and thereby injure the parties who have already invested their money on this side of the line it should not be allowed; but if on the other hand there is plenty of feed for the stock already here and to come, if its coming puts the present ranchmen to no further disadvantage than a healthy competition and if the terms made with the newcomers are such as prevent them from hindering agricultural settlement, the more that come in the better until the limit is reached. Since the destruction of the buffalo the vast plains of the Saskatchewan have been as unproductive as the Sahara. Their luxuriant grasses have grown, withered and been burned year after year, benefitting no one. Agricultural settlement comes in but slowly, and now when circumstances favor their being turned into a food and wealth producing region to the benefit of the whole country it would be folly to stand in the way. The main point to be decided is, how much of the total area of these plains is adapted to the winter grazing of cattle? There is little doubt that the area will be found after experiment to be much greater than is now generally supposed. Years ago, until the experiment was made, it was supposed that a small area at the outlet of the Bow river pass was the only winter grazing ground in the territories. Since that time it has been proved that all along the foot of the mountains and for a hundred miles out on the plains, and even in the Cypress hills 200 miles from the mountains, cattle may profitably be wintered out. Wherever the experiment has been made it has been fairly successful even as far north and east as Battleford, showing that the limit has not yet been established. In calculating the possibility of cattle wintering out it should be remembered that the buffalo, a similar animal and only a degree hardier, wintered as well near Fort Pitt on the Saskatchewan as in Texas. While it is not to be expected that cattle will do well wherever the buffalo could live—although horses will—it is reasonable to expect that the favorite winter feeding grounds of the buffalo would answer as winter ranges for cattle. Wherever west of the Great Coteau and south of the Saskatchewan, on what is sometimes called the second prairie step, there are high hills, sandy ridges or a very broken surface bare of timber there is very little doubt that cattle properly acclimatized will winter out as well as on the desert ranges of Montana, Wyoming, or Colorado, while they will have the advantage of far more luxuriant summer pasturage and plenty of water, and there will be a possibility of securing hay as a provision against severe storms or cruised snow, as is not possible on the ranges of the United States. Such localities are Wood mountain, the great sand hills north of the railroad line and west of Swift Current, the valley of the Red Deer from Tail creek to the mouth and numerous places on it above Tail creek, the Kuer, Hand and Nose hills and surroundings, parts of the valley of Battle river, the Blackfoot hills south of Pitt, and many others. These districts comprise a far greater area than the present ranching country. The intervening level country would furnish ample summer pasture and if cattle were herded on the levels in summer, saving the grass in the broken country for the winter alone, considering the vast difference in the amount of grass which an acre of the North-West will grow over an acre of the United States ranching country, there are good grounds for believing that although the grazing area of the North-West is not as great as that of say Montana and Wyoming it will sustain and fatten without artificial shelter as many head of cattle as one if not both of these territories. An extension of the ranching industry would provide a means by which the wasted grass of our plains could be turned into money, pending the time when agricultural settlers will require the land. Therefore all reasonable encouragement should be offered for its extension. But that encouragement should never take a shape that would tend to exclude the land from use by agricultural settlers, whose labor would produce far more wealth than the mere grazing of cattle ever can. The ranching industry should be encouraged, but to encourage it at the expense of agricultural settlement would be paying too dear for the whistle.

THE esteemed Mail is evidently desirous of heading a crusade—or perhaps an anti-crusade—against the unspeakable French and their unspeakable church—ever since the Chambly election, because the former have gone back on the Mail and its masters, and the latter declines to whip them into line. It has during the past six weeks through the medium of "An English Speaking Liberal," whose initials are probably the same as those of the Mail's able editor, discovered that the English Protestant population of Quebec is decreasing by emigration while their places are being filled by French Catholics. From this the Mail argues that Protestantism is in danger; that legislative union should be substituted for confederation; and that the French people and their church should be brought under control—the former no doubt prevented from multiplying too rapidly and the latter from acquiring wealth. To this eminently tolerant and patriotic end it recalls the struggles of George Brown against domination by a French minority in the old province of Canada, and seems desirous of appropriating that gentleman's shoes, which like his hat are rather large for any one connected with the Mail establishment. If the Protestants of Quebec are at a disadvantage their memories are not so short as to forget whose "statesmanship" thwarted George Brown's ablest efforts and put them in the position the Mail says they now occupy. Who was it that only at last session of parliament caused to be distributed from Ottawa extracts from Mr. Brown's writings on behalf of these Protestants for the purpose of showing the French people that he was their enemy because he agitated for the rights of the English? The difference between Mr. Brown and the Mail on this subject is that he maintained the right of the majority to rule while the Mail, on its present route, denies the right of the minority to exist. The Protestant religion will indeed be in danger when it depends on the championship of the Mail or its masters.

LOCAL.

The Battleford Herald, alluding to the prevalence of typhoid fever there says that it is common in many other places in the North-West and that mountain fever and Red river fever are identical. They are similar but not identical, and while one or the other may be common in many places in the North-West it may be as well to mention that Edmonton is not one of those places. There have been occasional cases of typhoid fever here but never a typhoid epidemic. In the beginning of the winter of '82 there were a number of cases of mountain fever, chiefly among persons who came across the mountains that fall and who it is believed brought the disease with them. Since that time there have been no cases of mountain fever here.

As extension of time for pre-emption payments due before Jan. 1st, 1887, has been granted. In the case of payments due on or before the 7th of July last, one-third must be paid before Jan. 1st, '87, another third before Jan. 1st, '88, and the final third before Jan. 1st, '89. Pre-emption payments falling due in the present year must be paid, one third in the first six months after becoming due, one third within a year thereafter, and the final third within two years thereafter. If the homesteader resides on his claim for six months in each of the three years of deferred payment and has forty acres under crop at the expiration of the time no interest will be charged. Otherwise six per cent. for the whole period of the extension will be collected. This is the answer to the request for pre-emption at $1 an acre.

The Industrial News, the organ of the Winnipeg knights of labor has appeared. It is a four page 24-column paper, edited by Jim Hooper. It appears from the issues received that it is engaged in a crusade against one Jas. Henderson who publishes a Winnipeg directory, because he gets the work done in Montreal. It threatens on behalf of the typographical union to get out an opposition directory as a means of bringing Mr. Henderson to a proper realization of the right of local printers to all local work. In this course the News is backed up by the Sun. At the same time the News prints eight out of its fourteen columns of reading matter from stereotyped plates produced in the United States instead of type set in Winnipeg, and the Sun does a little in the same line. The News and Sun apparently believe that what is sauce for their goose is not sauce for Mr. Henderson's gander. If the organ of the K. of L. does not act up to the principles which it assumes to champion, it can scarcely hope to succeed in compelling others to do so.

VANCOUVER the proposed western terminus of the C. P. R. is beginning to loom up as one of the most outrageous swindles of modern times. It will be remembered that by act of parliament Port Moody at the head of Burrard inlet was fixed upon as the terminus of the road. With that understanding property changed hands at fabulous prices, not on account of its intrinsic value but because the terminus was to be located there. Afterwards inducements were held out by certain speculators to the C. P. R. company to extend the line along the shore of Burrard inlet to Vancouver and make that place the terminus instead of Port Moody. On the strength of the arrangement then made Vancouver property sold at fabulous prices. At this time Port Moody appeared to be the swindle. Lately, however, it appears from a decision of the supreme court of British Columbia that the C. P. R. cannot make the proposed extension to Vancouver and must allow Port Moody to remain the terminus. As there is no commercial or engineering reason why Vancouver should be preferred to Port Moody and as the C. P. R. has sucked the Vancouver orange pretty dry it is more than likely that the project of railway extension will die and Vancouver die with it.

THE condition of affairs in Ireland is delightful. An obnoxious judge's house in the county Kerry has been dynamited and there have been several anti-eviction riots in various parts of the south. In Belfast nine of the policemen who fired on the mob have been indicted by a coroner's jury for wilful murder and are held for trial, and in every engagement that has taken place between the mob and police the latter have been defeated and in some cases their barracks wrecked. This is carrying the war into Africa with a vengeance. It now seems that the government never had an Irish difficulty to face until it woke up the "bloody tar downs." If Lord Churchill's speeches were the instigation of the Belfast riots, now that his government is in power he doubtless regrets them more deeply than any other public man.

Reports from the maritime provinces are to the effect that the protection to Canadian fisheries is a farce. That American fishermen are enjoying all the privileges they ever did, and no one interferes with them.

The British garrison in Kildare, Ireland, is being strengthened, with a view to a vigorous eviction policy during the coming winter.

SENATOR NELSON is mentioned as the probable next lieutenant governor of British Columbia.

LOCAL.

A SHOOTING MATCH between some drunken Sarcee Indians and three police took place on August 23rd at Calgary. The Indians stampeded the police horses and got away. One of them is reported wounded. The police were unhurt.

NUMEROUSLY signed petitions from the heads of half-breed families in this district and at Calgary, setting forth the claims to scrip of their children born since July 1st, 1870 were last mail forwarded to the premier and minister of the interior by R. Strachan, barrister, who prepared the Edmonton petition. The claims of the half-breeds are set forth clearly, and a definite offer of final settlement made.

HIS LORDSHIP the Bishop of Saskatchewan arrived from Calgary on Saturday last. According to announcement he held confirmation service in All Saint's church on Sunday. He started for Calgary again on Tuesday but in going down the hill to the river at the Fort the light wagon in which he was seated upset. He was thrown out and received such injuries as caused him to be detained at the Edmonton hotel all this week.

MAYOR REILLY of Calgary by proclamation calls upon all law-respecting citizens of that burgh to assist the police in the capture of the parties who have lately been jeopardizing life and property in that vicinity. This is the same Calgary whose people less than a year ago were howling themselves hoarse because the same police force would not leave these same parties alone. If they had not howled so loudly then they probably would not have had occasion to howl so loudly now. But the present howl is slightly subsequent—a case of locking the stable after the steeds are stolen.

A DECIDED change in the weather took place on Friday of last week, rain setting in during the forenoon and continuing at intervals all day. On Friday night and Saturday morning some sleet fell. On Saturday afternoon the rain was mixed with soft snow, which fell at intervals and lay to the depth of an inch in some parts of the settlement. In and near town it melted as fast as it fell on open ground but lay in sheltered places. Sunday was cloudy with a little rain and on Sunday night there was heavy rain, with snow towards Peace Hills. Monday was damp, with more rain Monday night. Tuesday was fine once more. The general expectation was that the wet spell would close with a cold snap and on Saturday cucumbers, tomatoes, citrons, squash, beans, etc., although not ripe, were hustled into the house. But the frost did not come. The small amount of grain uncut at the time of the wet weather has been lodged. Otherwise no damage has resulted as yet.
